THE RISE and PROGRESS
OF THE
Most Honourable and Loyal
SOCIETY
O F
Antient Britons, &c.

GENTLEMEN,

HE glorious and happy
Accession of his Majesty to the Throne of his Royal Ancestors, in spight
of all the secret Designs and Contrivances of the Enemies of our happy Constitution in Church and State,

State, who were designing to deprive him of his just and undoubted Right. This, and the safe Arrival of their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess, with Three of their most illustrious and beautiful Offspring, in these Kingdoms, were such Blessings and of so inestimable a Value, as required, from all true Lovers of their Country, the most sincere and grateful Returns of Thanks and Acknowledgments to Heaven for them.

And when we seriously reflect on our Deliverance from the imminent Danger which then threatned the Nation, and remember the Dissipation of those gloomy Clouds of Fears and Jealousies that surrounded us, by the bright Appearance of a King, and of a Prince and Princess, zealous as well for the Liberties of Europe in general, as for the Protestant Religion in particular; and at

at a Time too, when both were upon the very brink of Ruin and Destruction. As these things, I say, ought to raise in every Loyal Heart Transports of the highest Joy and Pleasure; so in a more particular Manner did they affect and warm the Ancient Britons. They therefore being animated with an uncommon Zeal upon this extraordinary Occasion, joyfully embraced that favourable Opportunity which the approaching Month of March offered, of forming themselves into a Regular Society; which they resolved to establish, both in Honour of the Day which gave Birth to that most Excellent Princess her Royal Highness, as also by appropriating it to the Memory of St. David, the Tutelar Saint of their Ancient Country.

For St. David, himself also was a Person every way adorned with Honour
and

and Dignity ; being of Blood Royal, and Uncle to the great King Arthur, and the Son of a Prince of Wales, as well as the first Archbishop of the See of St. David's ; * and who, after he had sat there 65 Years, died in the Year 642 and in the 146th Year of his Age, and was buried in his own Cathedral Church ; and about 500 Years after, was Canoniz'd for a Saint by Pope Calixtus the 2d.

And therefore the Antient Britons have, Time out of Mind, with a just regard to his great Birth, as well as the great Good he did to their Religion and Country, the Benefits of which they enjoy to this Day, celebrated his Anniversary on the First of March, and called it St. David's Day.

* Bishop Godwin's Lives of the Bishops.

And

And in Honour thereof, with a sensible Pleasure and a becoming Pride, they distinguish themselves and their dear Country, by wearing a Leek, wherever they reside in any Part of the World.

A Custom of such high Antiquity, that even our own Histories are silent about its Rise, and only give us leave to conjecture, that it perpetuates the Memory of our abstemious Saint, who lived a rigid Eremetick Life, feeding only on Herbs, (of which perhaps Leeks were a principal Part) and drinking nothing but Water.

This is Bishop Godwin's Account : and what can we infer less from so extraordinary a Relation, than that our St. David was a very excellent Person, and well worthy to have his Memory transmitted to latest Posterity ; Nor can there there now remain any Reason to doubt, but that it certainly will be so, when we consider the surprizing Coincidence of our most glorious Prince's Birth-Day, with that of the Festival of St. David. Yes! this will secure, this will complete the Celebration of St. David's Anniversary for ever! And how ought we to value ourselves that St. David's Day hath such an Additional Honour as to be joined with the Birth-Day of a Prince, who left an Empire for the sake of that Religion which St. David appear'd zealous in the Defence of; and by whom the same is to be transmitted to late Posterity: and upon whom and her illustrious Issue the Perpetuity of it entirely depends.

Therefore this propitious Opportunity was piously embraced by the true Zeal of the Antient Britons, for which they have ever been so famous.

And

And to shew their Gratitude to God and Man for this Day's double Production, they publish'd an Advertisement in the Gazette on the 9th of February, 1714. that the Service of the Church of England would be perform'd, and a Sermon preach'd in the ~~greatest~~ ~~British Language~~, on Tuesday the 1st of March following, at St. Paul's Church in Covent-Garden; and therein it was further desired, that all Gentlemen who were willing to join in the Establishment of a Society in Honour of her Royal Highness's Birth-Day, and the Princepality of Wales, would please to accompany the Right Honourable John,
Lord Viscount Lysburne, the Right Reverend Father in God John, Lord Bishop of Bangor, Lord Almoner to his Royal Highness, and the rest of the Welsh Nobility, Gentry and Clergy, to hear the said Service and Sermon, and from thence to proceed to Haberdasher's-

Hall

Hall to Dinner, in order to choose a President and Stewards, &c. to continue the same on every St. David's Day for the future.

According to this Advertisement, on Tuesday the First of March, 1714. at St. Paul's Covent-Garden, the Reverend Mr. Philips read the Service of the Church of England, and the Reverend Mr. Lewis preached a Sermon in the British Language on this Text, viz. As we have therefore Opportunity, let us do Good unto all Men, especially unto them who are of the Household of Faith, Gal. vi. 10. And from thence he shewed what a glorious Opportunity the Britons now had, to unite and assemble together and to pay their just Duty to God, for the uncommon Blessings of the Day.

But there being 4000 of these Sermons printed, some whereof I have sent, sent, and the rest are to be sent into the Country, to be dispersed amongst the Common People for whose Good it was intended, that they might be instructed in the Duties of Brotherly Love, and of Loyalty to their King in their own Language: I beg leave to refer you to them for your better Satisfaction.

On this Occasion a great Number of Welch Gentlemen were present, pursuant to the Advertisement; who, after the Sermon was over, proceeded from thence in decent Order, to Haberdafer's-Hall to Dinner; where a splendid Entertainment was prepared, and two Chairs provided for both their Royal Highnesses: which Chairs were attended by the Lord Lysburne and Lord-Almoner to the Prince, (two Welch Gentlemen.)

And the Table was filled with a great many of the Nobility, Gentry and Clergy.

B                    And

And when the Second Course covered the Table, there were drank, according to Custom, now so common throughout Great-Britain and Ireland, the following Healths, viz.

1. To King G E O R G E and the Church of England, as by Law Established.
2. To their Royal Highnesses, the Prince and Princess, and their Issue; which being proclaimed in the Hall by the proper Officer, it was drank with the most expressive Marks of Loyalty and Affection: And after that, was begun a Health to the
3. Lord-Mayor of London, as the chief Magistrate in that mighty City.
4. A happy Meeting to King and Parliament.
5. Pro-

5. Prosperity to Trade.

6. Prosperity to the Principality of Wales.

And after those usual Solemnities were over, they chose the following Gentlemen Stewards, in order to continue the Celebration of this Festival the next Year, and so Annually for the Time to come, viz.

1. The Right Honourable the Lord Viscount Lysburne.

2. The Right Honourable Sir Walter Tonge, First Commissioner of the Customs.

3. The Honourable Sydney Godolphin, Esq; Auditor of Wales.

4. The Honourable General John Sabine, Commander of the Welch Fuziliers.

5. The Honourable Brigadier Henry Grove.

6. Roger Jones, Esq; Member of Parliament.

7. Charles Allenson, Esq; Member of Parliament.

8. William Price, Esq;

9. William Wynn, Esq;

10. John Lloyd, Esq;

And after this Election, they came to the following Resolutions.

1. That this Society should be called by the Name of the Most Honourable and Loyal Society of Antient Britons, established in Honour to the Birth-Day of Her Royal Highness the Princess, and to

to the Principality of WALES; and that it should be celebrated and held every Year on St. David's Day.

And that all Charity Money which shall be given to the faid Society, be dispos'd of by the Stewards for the Time, in conjunction with his Royal-Highness's Almoner, the Bishop of Bangor for the Time being, for the Benefit of the Welch Nation in general, as they shall think proper.

2. That the naming of a President be deferred till his Royal Highness's Pleasure be known,

3. That Mr. Lewis be Thanked for his exellent Sermon, and that he be desired to print the same in the Antient British Language, for the Benefit of the Natives of Wales.

4. That Thomas Jones, of Lincoln
Im, Esq; be declared Secretary and Treasurer, and the Reverend Mr. Pbi-
lip<sub>s</sub>, Vicar of Devonock, be declared Chaplain to the said Society.

After these Rules were made, the Stewards marched in Proceſſion, each having a golden Cup carried before him, the Musick playing before them round the Hall; and when they were returned to the Table where the Chairs were prepared for their Royal Highnesses, the Secretary aloud proclaimed the ſaid Rules. Which were afterwards unanimously agreed to and approved of, and followed with an hearty Huzza, Long live King GEORGE, the Prince and Princess, and their Issue.

Next to this was performed by Mr, Durfey, the following Song of his own Composing, in Honour of the Day. The Words

[ 23 ]

Words being defignedly plain and the Tune easy and natural, that every honest
Briton's Voice may readily resound the Loyal Sentiments of his Heart.

SONG.

I.

*As far as the glittering God of Day
Extends his Radiant Light,
Old Britain her Glory will display,
In every Action bright ;
The Fleur de Lis and English Rose
May boast of their Antique Tales,
But the Leek with the greatest Honour grows,
For the lasting Renown of Wales.*

II.

*In vain all our musical Bards did seek
To know whence this Glory sprung,
For Time, without Date, has the famous Leek
In tuneful Verse been sung
By the Teutous allowed, and victorious Rome,*

B 4

And

*And the brave Black Prince ne'er fails
The Battle of old by this Signal o'ercome,
To exalt the Renown of Wales.*

III.

*The brave British Heroes did often appear
Recorded in golden Lines,
Cadwallader first led the Van without Fear,
While brave Conan with Griffith joins,
We'll give them their due, but must now find out new,
And our valiant young Prince bring in play,
Who by Power divine, proves he's fated to shine
In a Sphere much brighter than they.*

IV.

*Let Cynthia give up the Reign of the Night,
And abscond in the foamy Seas,
The Princess that Power must claim as her Right,
If Beauty can govern and please;
The Goddess confess'd, all our Hearts has possessed;
And will more ev'ry Age ov'rcome,
By her Temper, that Charms and adorably Warms,
And the Race of young Angels at Home.*

V. Shine

V.

*Shine out then bright Star, and while Nations from
 All unite to applaud thy Worth,
 We sounding our Joys, with a general Voice,
 Bleſſes the Day that firſt gave thee Birth ;
 To GEORGE and his Race, let Pretenders give place,
 Wher'e'er they are known or ſeen ;
 And when he ſoars on high, 'twill to them be new Joy
 Who ſurvive, to fee thee Queen.*

VI.

*Nor muſt we forget, what is muſch better yet,
 To Renown us in Times to come,
 Prince Frederick, the Roſe that in Hanover grows,
 And now ſprings with delightful Bloom ;
 When he ſhall appear, Joy will crown ev'ry Tear,
 Always bleſſed with his ſoaring Fame,
 Bidding false Ones adieu, we ſhall ſtill own the True,
 And reject the Pretender's Claim.*

After the Solemnity of the Day was over, the Stewards adjourned themſelves to

to a Meeting at the Secretary's House on the 6th of March following, in order to consider farther of the Advantage and Progress of the Society.

At which appointed Time all the Stewards were present ; and a Motion being made touching the Choice of their President; which was postponed, as hath before been observed, till his Royal Highness's Pleasure was known ; It was

Resolved, Nemine Contradicente,
That Brigadier Grove, one of the Stewards, do wait upon his Grace the Duke of Argyle, Groom of the Stole to his Royal Highness, to know his Royal Highness's Pleasure touching the Affair of the Society.

And the Brigadier, who had always been very active and ready to shew the greatest Endeavours towards promoting the the Society, did accordingly apply to the Duke : Whereupon his Grace, with a Goodness and Courtesy equal to his high Birth and acquired Vertues, kindly received the Society :

Who went to wait upon him in a Body, upon the Brigadier's Report, That his Grace would be pleased to serve the Society as was desired.--- And he then promised to introduce them, as really he did the 24th of March, to his Royal Highness's Presence : At which time the Society made it their humble Request, That his Royal Highness would please to Patronize them as their President, the better to encourage this Loyal and useful Undertaking.

Which the Prince very graciously promised to do, and gave them leave to Name him their President ; and further, with great Goodness, assured them,
THAT HE WOULD DO ANY THING WITH

WITH PLEASURE TO COUNTEINANCE
AND ENCOURAGE HIS COUNTRY-
MEN. And as a Token thereof, gave them the Honour to kiss his Hand.

After this the Society waited upon her Royal Highness the Princess, being introduced by Mr. Poultney, the Vice-Chamberlain, in the Absence of the Lord Bridgewater, the Lord-Chamberlain: And her Royal Highness likewise received them very graciously; and declared, That the Society was very acceptable to her. And as such gave them the Honour to kiss her Hand.

Pleased and encouraged by such particular Marks of Favour as these, the Stewards agreed to meet again on the Second of April following at the Secretary's House, to consider farther about improving a Design so happily and successfully began.

And

And accordingly at a Meeting held the Second of April, 1715.

All the Stewards being present, they came to the following Resolutions.

1st. Resolved,

That his Royal Highness GEORGE,
Prince of Wales, be, and is hereby unanimously, and with the utmost Gratitude, Duty, and Satisfaction, chosen and declared President of the Society of the Loyal Antient Britons.

Resolved,

That the Thanks of the Society be given to his Grace the Duke of Argyle, for the Honour he did the Society, in introducing them to his Royal Highness.

And that the Lord Lysburne, Sir Walter Younge and Brigadier Grove, do wait upon

upon his Grace with the same ; and to beg to his Grace return their humble Duty and Thanks to his Royal Highness, for the great Honour he hath been pleased to do the Society, and to assure him, that they have a due Sense of it, and will communicate it to their Countrymen.

And this their dutiful Acknowledgment and Thanks was actually given to his Grace on the Fifth of April following.

Resolved also,

That an Account of the Society be published in the Gazette in the Words following, viz.

On Wednesday the Twenty Ninth Day of March, the Stewards of the Society of Antient Britons, established last St. David's Day, in Honour to Her Royal Highness's Birth-Day and the Principality of Wales, were

were introduced by his Grace the Duke of Argyle to his Royal Highness, who received them very graciously, gave them the Honour to kiss his Hand; and at the same time declared, HE WOULD DO ANY THING WITH PLEASURE TO COUNTENANCE AND ENCOURAGE HIS COUNTRYMEN. And afterwards, they were introduced to her Royal Highness; who likewise received them very graciously, by the Vice-Chamberlain, in the Absence of the Lord-Chamberlain; and granted them the same Honour and Favour of kissing her Hand.

Which Account was, by Order of the Principal Secretary of State, commanded to be inserted in the Gazette of the Ninth of April, 1715.

The Loyal Society of the Antient Britons being thus established, and having the Honour to be declared acceptable to their Royal Highnesses; and an Account count of this having been published in the Gazette by Order of the Principal Secretary of State ; they were exceedingly pleased and delighted, and only waited for some happy Opportunity of expressing publickly their Duty and Loyalty, and to shew the grateful Sentiments which they had for so great Honours and Favours.

Which soon after presented it self : For the Popish Pretender to his Majesty's Dominions offering to invade this Kingdom ; and a most unnatural Rebellion being now breaking out, and promoted by Papists, Non-Jurors, and other their Adherents : And Addresses being presented by his Majesty's Loyal Subjects from most Parts of his Kingdom : to assure him of their Loyalty and Fidelity, notwithstanding the vile Attempts of his Enemies ; this Loyal Society, according to the usual Zeal of the Antient

Britons,

Britons, animated with a just Gratitude for the Honour they had then received, as well as by a warm Affection to his Majesty's Person and Government ; appointed a Meeting on the Twentieth of August following, in order to form an Address to his Majesty on so great and pressing an Occasion.

Which accordingly they composed and penn'd. And this being done by the whole Society, upon due Consideration, I will not presume to give an Account of it in any other Manner, than as it was Ingrossed ; and Signed by above 200 Persons of the best Quality in the Principality of Wales, and presented by the Lord Viscount Lysburne, the first Steward, introduced by the Right Honourable the Earl of Manchester, accompanied by the rest of the Stewards, on the Twentieth of September following ; which Address his Majesty received very graciously, ciously, and all of them had the Honour to kiss his Majesty's Hand; and at the same time, as a Mark of his Majesty's Royal Favour to the Society, and the Principality that they represented, he was pleased to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Thomas Jones, Esq; their Treasurer and Secretary. The Address was published at large in the Gazette, and entred in the Journals of the Society in the Words following, viz.

The humble ADDRESS of the SOCIETY of Antient Britons, established in Honour to Her Royal Highness and the Principality of WALES.

Most gracious Sovereign,
 WHEN the Hand of Heaven
 gives Blessing to your Majsty's uninterrupted Labours for the good

' good of Mankind, when Tyranny and ' Oppression seem ready to expire, and
 ' the most pleasing Hopes spread them' selves through the Protestant World ;
 ' your faithful Subjects would appear un-
 ' mindful of their Duty, should they
 ' neglect to Congratulate with your Ma' jesty on the glorious Scene which be' gins to open, and at length promises
 ' Repose to Europe.

' The first part of your Majesty's
 ' Reign has been disturbed with Riots
 ' and Rebellion : our Adversaries having
 ' spared no Expence or Industry to fo-
 ' ment popular Commotions and kindle a ' Flame in your Kingdoms : Amidst these
 ' Tumults your great Spirit remained
 ' composed, studious of your People's ' Happiness, attentive to the Interest of
 ' Mankind, and calm in the Execution
 ' of generous and beneficent Designs ;
 ' no Alarms could divert you from car-

‘ ryng on the great Ends of Govern‘ ment; no Provocations abate your Con‘ cern, for fixing the Security of Bri‘ tain.

‘ At length the Dangers which threat-
‘ ned these Three Kingdoms disappear:
‘ At length Providence has favoured your ‘ Majesty’s Councils, and by one great *
‘ Incident, given a Turn to all the Affairs ‘ of Europe. We have the Prospect of ‘ our assuring to our selves, a lasting ‘ Tranquility, by recovering, once more,
‘ the Ballance of Power, and fixing ‘ Bounds to Ambition.

‘ The Pretender to your Majesty’s
‘ Crown, we have Reason to believe,
‘ has lost his best Friend and most pow‘ erful Support. That Outlaw must now, ‘ perhaps, seek a Sanctuary beyond the

* The King of France’s Death.

‘ Alps,

' Alps, and despair of raising Forces any
 ' where, unless in the Ecclesiastical State;
 ' that State, which before was only an
 ' Incentive to other Assistants, must now
 ' be his whole Strength. Thus are the ' Projects of guilty Men defeated, while
 ' your Majesty reigns happy in your ' own Britain, loved by the Wise and
 ' the Vertuous, obeyed by a willing and
 ' powerful People, and blest with this
 ' glorious Prerogative, that you have no
 ' Enemy who is a Friend to his Coun' try.

' It is with those warm and unfeign-
 ' ed Sentiments of Affection, that We of
 ' your Majesty's Dominion of Wales,
 ' who have commenced an Anniversary
 ' Assembly on that auspicious Day, which
 ' gave Birth to that most Excellent Prin' cess Her Royal Highness, have pre-
 ' sumed to approach your Majesty.

C 3

' We

' We hold it an Omen of Good to us
 ' in particular, that we see so Excellent a
 ' Prince and Princess, and so numerous an
 ' Offspring, whose House and Family
 ' are denominated from our Country,
 ' and whose Vertues are a Blessing and
 ' Ornament to all your Realms in ge' neral ; permit us, great SIR, with a ' Sincerity and Frankness of Heart, for ' which we may boast we are naturally
 ' celebrated, to invoke the Continuance ' of the great Distinction with which ' Heaven has advanced you above all
 ' other Princes, and to congratulate our ' selves the Happiness of being,

May it please your Majesty,

Your Majesty's most, &c.

Every one must own, that these were the Sentiments of great Men ; Men full of Love and true Loyalty to their King and Country,

Country, who were pleased thus freely to imbark in this Design, at a Time when the Rebellion was fomented and encouraged by our Enemies, in almost all Parts of the Kingdom. And the Event sufficiently shews, that the Gentlemen Stewards spared neither Time, Trouble, or Expence, to prepare for the Support and Continuance of this Society : and for which I take this Occasion to return them all my most humble and hearty Thanks.

And when the rest of the Gentlemen of our Country are apprized and made sensible of the Industry and Goodness which these shewed upon this Occasion ; they will be proud of doing themselves the same Honour. And I doubt not but they will be glad to do it as generously and as publickly ; when they consider that these Gentlemen, upon their own Expence, and at all Hazards, were preparing a way to make our Country acceptable to the best of Kings, as well as to the best of Princes.

For in order to celebrate the approaching St. David's Day, with as much Joy and Pomp as possible, they appointed a Meeting on the Twenty First of February following, which was held accordingly; and then they resolved, that Favours should be worn in Honour of the Day; and which should be made of good Silver Ribbon with this Mottto, * Carolina and St. David, and that each Steward should bear a green Staff, with the Arms of the Principality of Wales painted on the Top of it. And that an Ode composed in Honour of the Day by the ingenious Mr. Hughes, and set to Musick by the famous Dr. Pepuch, should be then performed. And for that purpose, that there should be Notice given in the * Christian Name of the Princess.

Gazette,

Gazette, the Evening-Post, and Daily-Courant, That on Thursday the First of March following, the Service of the Church of England would be performed, and a Sermon preached in the Antient British Language, at Ten of the Clock in the Forenoon, at St. Paul's Church, Covent-Garden, before the Stewards and others of the Society of Antient Britons, established in Honour to Her Royal Highness's Birth-Day, and the Principality of Wales.

As also, that after that they will proceed to Haberdasher's-Hall in Maiden-Lane, to Dinner, and then chuse Stewards for the ensuing Year.

Where also will be an Ode performed suitable to the Occasion, set to Musick by Dr. Pepuch.

Which

Which Advertisement was given accordingly; and pursuant thereto, the Stewards met at the aforesaid Church, where the Service of the Church of England was read by the Reverend Mr. Lewis, and a Sermon preach'd by the Reverend Mr. Philips, upon this Text, 1 Pet. ii. 15. For so is the Will of God, that with Well-doing, ye may put to silence the Ignorance of foolish Men.

The Stewards with their green Staves, and their Favours made in Honour of the Day, being present, and a great Number of Welch and other Nobility, Gentry and Clergy. And after Service was over, they proceeded to St. James's to pay their Complements to their Royal Highnesses, and from thence to Haberdasher's-Hall to Dinner; where a splendid Entertainment was prepared. And all being seated, the excellent Ode above-men-mentioned was performed by Mrs. Margaretta, and Mrs. Barbier. The Words these:

*An ODE for Two Voices,
for the Birth-Day of Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales. By Mr. Hughes.*

First Voice, Fame.

Second Voice, Cambria, or, the Principality of Wales.

Both Voices with a Trumpet.

To Joy, to Triumph, dedicate the Day.

Cambria.

Fame.

*Hail Cambria, long to Fame well known,
Thy Patron Saint looks smiling down,
Well pleased to see
His Day prolifick of Renown.
Encreas'd in Honours to himself and thee,
See Carolina's natal Star arise,
And with new Beams adorn thy Azure Skies,
Tho on her Virtues I should ever dwell,
Fame cannot all her numerous Virtues tell.*

*Bright in her self, and in her Offspring bright,
On Britain's Throne she casts diffusive Lights.*

*Destruction from her Presence flies,
And while promiscuous Crowds in Rapture gaze,
Ev'n Tongues disloyal learn her Praise,
And murmuring Envy sees her smile, and dies.*

*Happy Morn, such Gifts bestowing,
Britain's Joy from thee are flowing,
Ever thus auspicious shine,
Happy Isle, such Gifts possessing,
Britain ever own the Blessing,
Carolina's Charms are thine.*

Henceforth when to the listening Universe
 Thou numberest o'er my Princes of Renown,
 The second Hope of Britain's Crown ;
 When my great Edward's Deeds thou shalt rehearse ;
 And tell of Cressy's well fought Plain,
 Thy golden Trumpet sound again,
 And Oudenard's Fight immortalize thy Verse.

Air with a Harp.

Heavenly Muses tune your Lyres
 far resounding,
 Grace the Hero's glorious Name ;
 See the Song new Life inspires ;
 Every Breast with Joy abounding,
 Seems to share the Hero's Flame.

Fame.

O thou with every Virtue crown'd,
 Britannia's Father and her King renown'd,
 Thus in thy Offspring greatly blest,
 While thro' th' extended Royal Line
 Thou see'st thy propagated Lustre shine,
 What secret Raptures fill thy Breast.

As soon as the Performance of the ODE was over, Dinner was brought to Table, and when the Second Course came on, the Right Honourable the Lord Lysburne, the First Steward, begun the following Healths, viz.

1. King and Church, as by Law established.

2. Prince

2. Prince and Princess.
3. Prince Frederick.
4. The rest of the Royal Nursery.
5. The Lord Mayor of London.
6. Prosperity to the Principality of Wales.

Which were all proclaimed round the Hall, and drank with true Marks of Loyalty and Affection : And after Dinner the following Honourable and Loyal Gentlemen were chosen Stewards ; to whom this Account is humbly dedicated for the Year ensuing, under the Patronage of

His Royal Highness G E O R G E,
Prince of W A L E S, President.

D      i. The

1. The Honourable Talbot, Lord Viscount Longueville and Baron of Rutbin.
2. Sir Robert Cotton, Bart.
3. Sir John Aysten, Bart.
4. Sir Humphry Howarth, Bart.
5. Sherington Davenport, Esq; Major-General of his Majesty's Forces.
6. Samuel Mollyneux, Esq; Secretary to his Royal Highness, and One of the Members of the Honourable House of Commons.
7. Thomas Wymne, Esq; Equerry to his Royal Highness, and One of the Members of the Honourable House of Commons.
8. John

8. John Roberts, Esq; One of the Members of the Honourable House of Commons.

9. Charles Greenwood, Esq; One of the Commissioners of his Majesty's Duties arising from Wines.

And

10. Edward Hughes, Esq; Judge Advocate.

The new Stewards having accepted of the Staves, walked round the Hall, and at the President's Table, were aloud declared to be so, according to Custom, for the ensuing Year ; and then they withdrew, and came to the following Resolutions, viz.

1. That Thanks be given to the Reverend Mr. Philips for his Excellent Sermon, and that he be desired to print the same both in the Ancient British and in the present English Language, for the Benefit of the Natives of Wales, and others of this Nation. And accordingly Two Thousand were printed, and therefore to them I beg leave to refer you.

At a Meeting held the 9th of May, 1716.

All the Stewards were present.

And also the Right Reverend Father in God Benjamin, Lord Bishop of Bangor, Almoner to his Royal Highness the Prince, and by whose Approbation, according to the Rules of the Society, all its Charity is to be disposed.

Resolved,

2. That two Welch Boys be put out Apprentices to Trades, and that One be of that part called North-Wales, and the other of that part called South-Wales, and and that 10l. be given with each Boy; and that the Secretary do find out Masters, and Report them to the Board for Approbation.

Note, Two Boys have been since put out Apprentices, pursuant to the said Resolution, and several other Charities given to other poor Persons, Natives of the Principality.

3. That a monthly Meeting of the Stewards be held at the Secretary's House, to consider of the Good of the Society, viz. on every Third Wednesday in the Month, at 6 a Clock in the Evening; and that Five be and are hereby declared to be a Board, and that nothing done by that Number shall be controuled or altered by a less Number than Seven.

Note, That several Poems in Honour of the Day, were presented by several Persons, amongst which was one from Mr. John Morgan, eldest Son of John Morgan of Tredegar, Esq; tho a very young Gentleman, and then at School at Monmouth; which was ordered to be read, and is as followeth, viz.

A POEM on St. David's Day, being the Anniversary Day of her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales. Dedicated to the most Loyal SOCIETY of Antient Britons.

COME on true British Souls, your Joy display,
And doubly celebrate St. David's Day;
Let Phæbus Laurel for his Priests prepare,
Bacchus his Ivy, Pallas Olive wear;
But Leeks alone shall round our Temples be,
Leek's the Record of British Bravery;

Thrice

Thrice happy Day, shine forth with Beams of Mirth,
 From you our gracious Princess dates her Birth;
 August all o'er, endu'd with every Grace,
 She seems as born of more than mortal Race:
 How lovely is her Mien, her Temper sweet,
 Majestic, but serene, and bumbly great.
 Like great Queen Cybele, by whose pleasing Nods
 She fills with Joy her numerous Race of Gods;
 Britannia's Sons unusual Pleasure find,
 And awful Love inflames each loyal Mind;
 As when the approaching Sun brings back the Spring,
 And with his genial Rays reviews each Thing,
 Gay Nature smiles, green Meads are deck'd with (Flowers,
 Great Jove revives the Plants with fruitful Showers;
 The joyous Birds extend their warbling Throats,
 And fill the echoing Woods with cheerful Notes.
 Thus at her Presence all Tongues Pcean sing,
 And Things inanimate with Raptures ring.
 O if I were with Merlin's Spirit fired,
 And with immortal Princes Songs inspired,
 What Race of Cæsars cou'd I then presage
 Springing from her, to crown each growing Age?

What future glorious Scenes could I declare,
 And equal Triumphs both of Peace and War !
 Tho Saturn's Age again should Mortals bless
 With Ease and Plenty, Peace and Happiness ;
 Not ev'n Saturn could on us bestow
 More Joy than from this happy Day will flow.
 This very Day, as Histories relate,
 Did antient Rome in Splendor celebrate,
 Sacred to Matrons and the Nuptial State ;
 Since by their Charms the Sabine's Fury ceased,
 And Fathers to their Husbands were appeased ;
 But to our Princess much more Honour's due,
 Who saves our Country and Religion too,
 Who rather for the sake of Piety,
 Our Princess than an Empress chose to be.
 Well then, great Sirs, you have your Zeal express'd
 For such a Blessing by an annual Feast.
 Of Arthur's Table now we'll talk no more,
 Nor Argos Heroes, nor the Colchian Shore ;
 Him as the British Hero, we will boast,
 Her as the golden Prize of Britain's Coast :
 Come fill then, to her Health, the sparkling Bowl,
 And may her Name inspire each British Seal ;

Done in the month of June, in the year of our Lord
 And

*And when this annual happy Day shall shine,
An hundred tender Kids shall stain her Shrine.
O may our Joys be lasting, as they're great,
Our Happiness shall always be compleat,
Whilst neither such a King nor Princess fails,
A GEORGE for England, and CHARLOTTE for

Ordered,

That the Thanks of the Society be given by their Secretary to the said Mr. John Morgan, for his excellent Poem ; which was done accordingly.

The Season of the Year being now advanced for the Gentlemen to retire into their several Countries, there hath been no Meeting since ; so the whole Facts relating to the said Society, from first to last, determine here.

And now what I am farther to do, is only to make this Design appear as good and

and useful to Posterity, as it is glorious and honourable in its Institution.

And sure I need not spend many Words to prove a Point so clear as this is.

i. For first, what Society was ever so much honoured, in so little a time, as this hath been? And indeed, as no one can be, so none was ever better calculated and instituted, to expect and claim it: This being the Society of an entire Principality, consisting of Thirteen Counties;
whose Inhabitants, of all Degrees and Orders, have ever been famous in Story for their Generosity, Valour and Bravery.

And the Princes and Noblemen of Wales, have not been more conspicuous in the generous and steady Defence of their antient Civil Rights and Liberties, than have been their Archbishops and Bishops in supporting and maintaining
the

the true Primitive Christianity, and the antient Rights of their Sees : For there was in Wales, an Archbishop of Caerleon upon Usk in Monmouthshire, and afterwards at St. Davids, long before Pope Gregory sent St. Austin the Monk hither, to convert the Saxon King Etbelbert to the Christian Faith.

And tho upon his coming hither, the good old British Bishops were willing to pay Austin a civil Respect, and to advise with him about the common Cause of Christianity in general ; yet they bravely withstood all his Pretensions to any superior Jurisdiction over them, and denied, that the Pope, or any foreign Prince or Prelate, had any Right or Authority to invest Austin with any such Power.

And

And as they had received a more pure Faith, probably by the preaching of St. Paul himself, the great Apostle of the Gentiles ; so they still continued their ancient Customs and Rites, and kept their Churches clean and untainted from the Infection of Idolatry, and from all Usurpations of the See of Rome.

And the great St. David's Courage and Conduct in this Affair, was equal to his high Birth and Piety ; and he and his Successors continued their Metropolitan Jurisdiction in the See of St. David, till King H. I. wrested it from them, as he had done indeed, in some measure, the Principality of their Country previous thereto, tho' this last was not compleated till the Death of Luellin, in the Reign of King Henry the Second.

2. How properly and peculiarly hath Heaven favoured this Society with a Patron ?

tron? For this Society is not only dedicated to the greatest and most valiant of Princes, but devoted to our Princess, who, as was hinted before, refused an Empire for the then distant Prospect of the Name and Title of our Country; and chose rather to wait with a safe Conscience, in the Exercise of the true Protestant Faith, for any remote Rewards of her Merit and Virtue, than to accept the Imperial Dignity, when it must be connected with a false and idolatrous Worship.

3. And what a providential Coincidence is it, that her Birth-Day should be the very same with that on which the Antient Britons have so long celebrated the Festival of their Tutelar Saint? Is not this a fair Indication, that Heaven it self had it in view, that the beautiful Mother of all the English Kings and Princes from hence to the end of the World, after the Decease of his present Majesty, and the Prince Prince her Royal Consort, (whom God long preserve) should be the Instrument and happy Occasion of the Meeting of a Society so well fixed, founded and honoured.

And which may, and no doubt will, prove a Nursery of Duty and Loyalty to the best of Kings, King GEORGE.

Whose undoubted Right may be easilly seen by the following short genealogical Abstract of his Descent; and which, to prevent any of my Countrymen from being imposed upon by bold and ignorant Persons, I have here subjoyn'd, viz.

King Charles the First the third Born and only surviving Son of King James the First, the first Prince of the Line of Stewarts that reigned in England, married Henrietta Maria, Daughter of Henry the Fourth, King of France, who to the great Mis-

Misfortune of England, was a Papist. Elizabeth, of Great-Britain, eldest Born and only surviving Daughter of King James the First, and Sister to King Charles the First, married Frederick King of Böhemia, who by a Providence favourable to this Nation, was a Protestant.

King Charles the First had by the said Henrietta Maria of France, amongst others, King James the Second of England, who was unhappily for himself and us, a Papist likewise.

Elizabeth of Great-Britain, Queen of Böhemia had, by Frederick King of Böhemia, a Protestant, amongst others, the Princess Sophia, a Protestant also.

King James the Second had by Anne Daughter of Edward Earl of Clarendon, amongst others, Queen Anne, a Protestant.

The

The Princeſſ Sophia had, by Prince Augustus, Elector and Duke of Brunfwick Lauenburgh, a Protestant, his preſent Maſtſty King GEORGE, a Protestant alſo, who therefore is the next Protestant Prince in the whole World, that is allyed to us.

So that it's plain, there can be, in Point of Birth-right, no one Competitor with our King, but a Papift, who is excluded by our Laws and Acts of Settlement, as utterly uncapable of being our King.

And whether this be not ſufficient, without ſaying any thing of the Religion, Education, or any other Personal Disqualifications of the Pretender, I leave every true Briton and ſerious Protestant to judge for himſelf.

Go on therefore, my dear Countrymen, go on and prosper: as becomes a People that have been in Possession of a Country and its Language, for near 2400 Years *, without Commixtion of any other Tongue amongst it; which perhaps, is the greatest Argument and Instance that can be given, of a Country's never having been entirely subdued by a foreign Power.

I hope I need not say many things to you about the Benefit or Advantages of such kind of Festivals and Societies in general: long Experience throughout the whole Kingdom having abundantly convinced us, that this is the best way of promoting publick and diffusive Charity. The Joy and Pleasure that attends such Festivals raises Men, as it were, above their ordinary selves ; the Spirits grow exalted, and the Mind enlarged, and they then laudably strive to rival and to out-do each other in Beneficence, Bounty, and Generosity.

* Wynne's Description of Wales.

At such Times also Men converse with one another with more Freedom and Unreservedness than in common Life, and have a less regard to Self-Interest and private Advantage.

These therefore are the most proper Times for generous and publick Spirits, whose Thoughts are usually employed, how to render themselves useful and beneficent to Mankind, to propose Things for the common Benefit and Advantage.

And at such a Time as this their Reasons and Arguments shall prevail, and their Examples be followed, even by such as had neither Assurance to propose it, nor Genero-

Generosity to contribute towards it at another.

When these glorious Aims and Ends therefore, Gentlemen ! sanctify Feasting and publick Entertainments : I may say to every honest Briton, in the Words of Solomon, Go thy way, eat thy Bread with Joy, and drink thy Wine with a merry Heart; for now God accepteth thy Works, Eccles. ix. 7.

And if such noble Advantages as these are the usual Results of ordinary Festivals ; what may we not expect from this, which is established in Honour of a whole Principality ; many of whose Natives are now incorporated with the English and the People of other Countries, and removed into most Parts of the World, as well as Great-Britain and Ireland ; and whose Descendants in all Parts, will be glad to shew that there is yet some of the same Blood and Spirits left in their Veins, that circulated so nobly in those of their Ancestors, and which occasioned them to celebrate this Day.

And who knows by this means, how many Countrymen and Kinsmen we may regain? who will be glad now to return us, when they find us so nobly and generously exerting our selves for the publick Good.

But whither am I going? Where can I stop in this long and pleasant way? For indeed it is far easier to celebrate the Benefactors, and to enumerate the Benefits and Advantages which must accrue to the poor Natives and Inhabitants of Wales, by the charitable Contributions of such a Society, than it is to account for the Neglect and Omission of its Establishment before now.

Here

Here I must own I am at a loss,
and can only have recourse to Providence, in whose Hands the Times and Seasons of all Things are.

And may not one think, that in the present Institution of this Society, Heaven had some previous and peculiar regard to the Birth of her Royal Highness : a Princess whose universal Goodness, Charity and Beneficence to Mankind, is sufficient to inspire us on such an Occasion, and that in no less a manner than it did those worthy and loyal Gentlemen, who have done us the Honour to become our Stewards, (who yet perhaps can scarce call themselves Welchmen, or speak the Language as we do). And surely, we must be all pleased ; when we consider, that while they are paying their Compliments to the Royal Family, they are at the same time gloriously contributing to the Good of our Principality. For what Disaffection can remain in our Minds, when we are assured that all the Charity Money raised on this Occasion, is to be disposed of for the Benefit of the Natives of Wales only; and by such honourable Gentlemen as the Stewards are, Men of high Birth and Quality, as well as great Estates and Generosity.

And for the Honour of this double Festival be it spoken, every one of the Stewards bears some peculiar Character of Honour; and they have this present Year, in the Chair, the worthy Lord Longueville, a Peer of the Realm, of an antient and loyal Family, who for many Years, hath born the Title of Baron of Rutbin, a Place within the Principality of Wales. And no less was this Society honoured the last Year by their having another noble Peer, the Lord Lysburne, for their first Steward, and who acted upon this, as he does does upon all other Occasions, where his King and Country is concerned, with that Spirit that becomes the Grandson of that great and loyal Man, the Lord Chief Justice Vaughan, who so well filled the Tribunal of Justice in the Reign of King Charles the Second, and of Richard Vaughan, Esq; his Father, who distinguished himself so eminently in the House of Commons in the same Reign.

And all the rest of the last, as well as this Year's Stewards, are Men of Dignity and Condition, either as Members of Parliament, or as distinguished in some other Place of Trust under the Government.

When, I say, you consider that you have such Gentlemen as these to dispose of the Charity Money which shall be this way raised, and that in conjuction with the Lord Almoner to his Royal Highness the Prince, and who is such by the Relation he bears to Wales, or as he is Bishop of Bangor;

And when you recollect, that the present Almoner, the Right Reverend Father in God Benjamin, Lord Bishop of Bangor, is now the Person who is to supervise your Benefactions and Charity; you can, I'm sure, have no doubt but that they will be well and usefully employed.

For his Lordship's Integrity and Goodness are as eminent as his Parts and Learning; and as his serious regard to the Honour and Interest of the established Church, and to the Laws and Liberties of his Country: and That he hath sufficiently demonstrated by the most temperate and judicious Discourses in their Defence,

From

From your Charity then thus excellently employed, may you not expect a Nursery of Youth, educated and brought up in the true Principles of Religion and Virtue, and in Fidelity and Loyalty to his Majesty King GEORGE.

And as I verily persuade my self that you are always generously disposed to the Exercise of Charity in all its Branches, so I know you will express the greatest Zeal for the promoting of that part of it, which will contribute most to the Glory of God and the Good of your Country.

For these excellent Purposes are no ways so effectually answered, as by the Education of poor Children, who by that Means will be made good Christians and good Subjects; be taught their Duty to God, their King, their Country, try, their Neighbours, and themselves, will become useful Members in the Commonwealth, and be enabled to do much Good in their Generation.

And this is an Undertaking, which as it is of singular Moment and Importance in it self, so it cannot fail of being highly acceptable to our most illustrious Princess, who no doubt will be extremely delighted with the glorious Prospect of the Increase and Promotion of that Religion which was so dear and invaluable to her, as to make her refuse even the Imperial Diadem, when it was inconsistent with it, as I observed before.

And this Success She may justly promise her self, from the zealous Endeavours of a Society, consisting of so many worthy and honourable Gentlemen.

And

And lastly, for the Satisfaction of all my Countrymen and others, that their Charity shall be duly regarded as well as be rightly dispos'd of and directed ; there will be a Book kept to register the Names of all Persons that shall think fit, by their liberality, to encourage this loyal and honourable Design : And also to enter the Persons Names to whom, and how it shall be dispos'd ; which Book any Person may have recourse to.

And now having given you a full and true Account of the Rise and Progress of our Society, I have no more to add, than to recommend it to your Friendship and Consideration, and to beg Pardon for the Presumption of so great an Attempt, as that of my own Undertaking for a Principality ; and that too when there were but few of the Country Gentlemen in Town ; for the Parliament being,
you

you know, dissolved soon after the KING landed, the Country was busy in choosing a New one ; and that prevented the Appearance of some of the most considerable of the Gentlemen of our Country at our first Meeting on St. David's Day, 1714.

But that being the first Birth-Day of the Princes after her Arrival in England, and the Birth-Day also of the first which hath born the Name of Princes of Wales for these many Years past, I would not omit the Opportunity of paying a proper Complement to my Countrymen, because I hope it would not be unpleasing to them.

And I doubt not but the Honour and Advantage of this Society will always appear so great, that it can never want the Countenance and Encouragement

ment of honest, generous, worthy and loyal Gentlemen.

I am,

My LORDS and GENTLEMEN,

Your most Obedient and most

Faithful Humble Servant,

Tho. Jones.
